HOW CITY SERVICES ARE FUNDED IN POMPANO BEACH

PROPERTY TAXES IN POMPANO BEACH

Property taxes are used to fund the services Pompano Beach residents rely on every day.

The City of Pompano Beach's share of property tax revenues helps fund public safety, parks and recreation, infrastructure, community programs, and other city services provided to our community.

POMPANO BEACH'S SHARE OF YOUR PROPERTY TAX BILL

When a Pompano Beach property owner pays a property tax bill, the entire amount does not go to the City of Pompano Beach.

The bill includes taxes levied by multiple governmental and taxing authorities, which may include:

30¢ - City of Pompano Beach

28¢ - Broward County

32¢ - School Board of Broward County

10¢ - Special Districts (including Children's Services Council, N. Hospital District, Florida Inland Navigation District, South Florida Water Management District)

Of each property tax dollar paid by a Pompano Beach property owner, approximately $0.30 supports City of Pompano Beach services.

Based on FY 2026 adopted millage rates.

HOW THE CITY'S BUDGET IS FUNDED

Property taxes are one of the primary revenue sources supporting the City services.

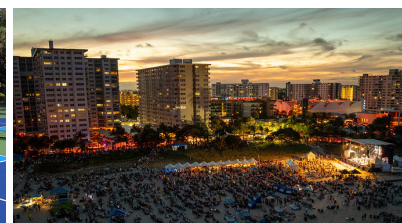

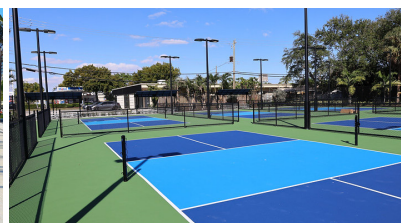

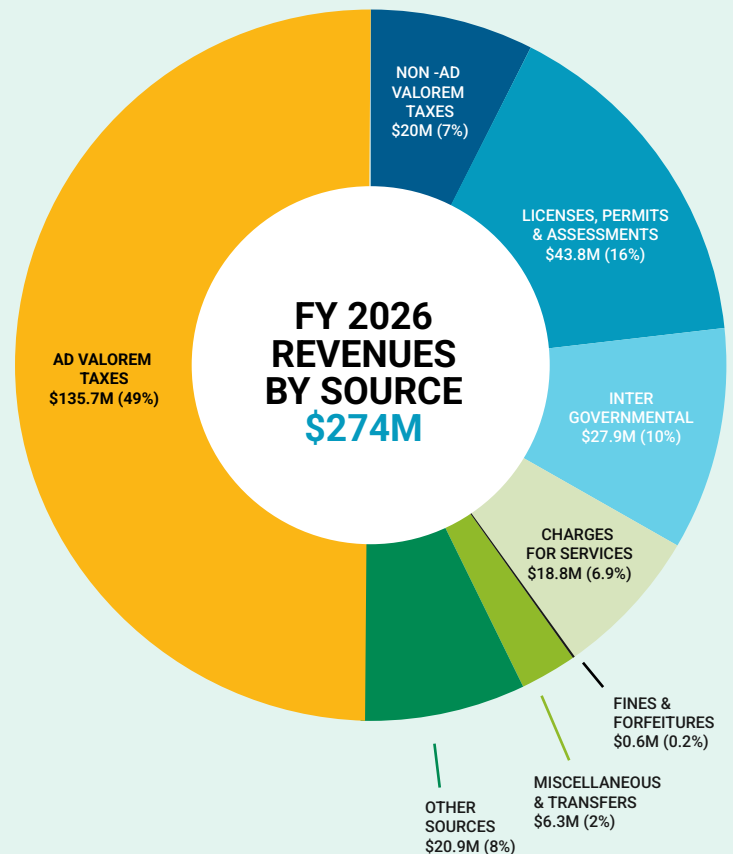

Almost half of the City's tax supported budget (General Fund, EMS, and Voter Approved Debt) is supported by property tax revenue.

The General Fund provides funding for many of the City's core services and day-to-day operations.

Over half of the city's budget funds public safety services.
